To Whom It May Concern:

My full name is Barbara Elaine Stone, and I am a Licensed Independent Clinical Social Worker and also hold a doctorate in Clinical Psychology from Pacifica Graduate Institute in Santa Barbara, California.

I am in full time private practice and also teach energy psychology workshops.

I use NMT as taught by use of the NMT seminars and have found it very useful in treating patients. NMT helps to more rapidly resolve issues of emotional conflict and releasing trauma. The Central Nervous System Laterality and Level of Processing Pathway has been very useful in helping clients to clear their neurological disorganization, which leads to fuzzy or confused thinking.

Changes that seem to be miraculous are happening all the time.

One case involves a medical issue, which I do not treat in my practice, but I could not help myself from treating my Mother since I had the tools and she had the need.

My 79-year-old mother had a cornea transplant on September 11, 2001 (a famous day). Recently her sight in that eye worsened, and the eye was red and swollen and very painful. Her sight was not good enough to drive, a big loss for her. Her eye doctor was talking about tissue rejection, and my father told me Mom was going to need surgery to get a new cornea transplant.

On Christmas Eve, I did the Implanted Genome Pathway with her to get her body to recognize the difference in the genetic structure of the implanted cornea (from a man) and to accept this genetic structure as part of her own body and to stop attacking it. When we cleared the Pernicious Synaptic Pathways involved, she reported "the war in my head cleared up."

With this treatment, the eye reversed its process of gradual worsening and began to gradually improve. She could feel how her own body was no longer attacking this tissue as a foreign object. Her sight has gradually improved, and by January 6th she was cleared by the doctor to drive again. We are all very grateful for this NMT "miracle" of being able to talk to the autonomic control system of the body into better health.

Very Sincerely,
